HANDY DIPPING TANK.

It Will Answer All Ordinary Purposes and is Sure to Last Quite a Long Time.

It is a good plan to give the sheep a thorough dipping even if they are not covered with ticks or lice or infected with scab. It does not cost a great deal, and if one is fixed for it it does not take very much time or labor. It can be done when the fields are too wet to work. It will destroy any parasites that may be getting a foothold on the sheep and may save much extra labor and some loss that would otherwise be incurred later on. The sooner the dipping is done the better. As the wool gets longer the more dip will be required to accomplish the job and the more time and care will be necessary to insure a thorough saturation of every part of the sheep. More time will also be required for them to drain properly. There are very many dips on the market that are effective in the destruction of parasites and harmless to the sheep and its coat. Any of the tobacco or coal tar preparations are all right in this respect so far as we are aware. Do not use any dip containing lime, as that substance injures the fleece. To the amateur we would say be sure that the operation is thoroughly performed. See that every part of the body is thoroughly wet. Keep the body, except the eyes and nose, under the liquid for at least one minute. A tank should be kept on hand for this use. It may also be used for the dipping of hogs. A galvanized steel tank, made especially for this work, can be purchased; or one can be made of two-inch matched lumber that will answer every purpose and last a long time if properly taken care of. The accompanying cut represents a form of tank that is convenient and also economical in the amount of liquid required. The tank should be 18 inches wide at the top and six inches at the bottom and four feet in depth. For a small flock a length of six feet at top and two at bottom is sufficient and can be increased according to the size of the flock. The sloping surface should be elevated to enable the animal to assist itself out of the tank and thus lessen the lifting. In larger sizes of tanks the inclined end may be made more sloping. For the small flock a tight wagon box may be used for a draining pen, having it arranged that the liquid will run back into the tank. When larger numbers are to be handled it will be desirable to construct a special draining floor and pen that will accommodate a larger number of animals and divided in the middle so that one part can be filled while those in the other division are draining. The tank should be set in the ground about three feet and where large numbers are to be run through a long vat there should be a pen with a chute leading up to the end of the vat. There should be a gate to close this chute when filled. There should also be a floor in the chute on a level with the top of the tank. This is especially true in the dipping of hogs, and if it can slope toward the tank all the better. The liquid may be economized by putting the larger animals through the tank first, saving the lambs or pigs as the case may be until the last, as they can be handled with less amount of liquid in the vat.—Prairie Farmer.

A GOOD DIPPING TANK.

Sweet Clover for Bees.

Sweet clover is considered excellent bee pasture and in regard to the sowing of it and the kind of soil on which it may be grown the Bee Journal says: The seed may be sown almost anywhere, and it is well to have the ground made quite solid with a roller or otherwise. One of the most successful ways of getting a stand of sweet clover is to sow it on hard ground either fall or spring, and then have it well trampled in by live stock. It does not bloom till the second year, and dies root and branch the following winter. It will not grow on solid rock nor in clear water; almost anything between these two will answer. It makes a fine growth on tough clay where nothing else cares to grow.

It should be the ambition of every farmer to improve his horses up to the high market standard for the best draft horses. Select the bred of your choice and stick to it. Grade up to the best pure-bred stallions.—Midland Farmer.

SUCH A MISUNDERSTANDING!

The Man Who "Rubbered" Was Not Familiar with Talk of the Railway.

"When I saw that she was almost beyond my control," said the railway engineer, "I threw her over."

"Brute!" ejaculated a gentleman wearing eye glasses and grassy whiskers, who was unintentionally straining his ears to overhear the conversation, relates Judge.

"It didn't do any good," continued the engineer, "so I shut her off; but still she was jumping pretty hard and sliding around."

"Infamous!" said the grassy whiskered man.

"Sliding around; so I gave her air."

"Ah, then you have some little instinct of kindness," growled the incensed listener.

"But it wasn't any use, and so I jumped and got away just when she began to smash things."

"And I don't blame her one bit!" asserted the man with the eye glasses, and the grassy beard. "It's a pity she didn't smash you, so you couldn't come here and boast of your cruelty. I am not surprised at the number of divorces nowadays."

The trouble with some people is that they allow themselves to be discouraged by criticism, and the trouble with others is that they do not.—Pack.
